The Primaries

There are 2 meager parties the Democrat and the Republic parties. Every four years candidates for each party starts their campaign. For several months they campaign to covers the people to vote for them, so they can represent each of the parties. Ones they are elected to each party the candidate officially except their candidacy during the convention for each party. During these period the candidates choose their running met, for the vice presidency.

The Electoral Process

Federal elections are held in November of even - numbered years. Just as Presidents, Senators, and Representatives have overlapping constituencies, their terms also overlap.

All representatives are elected every two years the voters of the district they represent.

Senators serve six-year terms, with one-third of them up for election every even year. Senators are chosen in statewide elections and represent of their states.

The President and Vice President are elected together every four years in a nationwide election.

After elections in each state are certified, the electoral votes won by each candidate are counted. If a candidate receives a majority of the electoral votes (at least 270 of the 538 total), he or she is declared the winner. Ones it is decided how is the winner, he or she officially takes office on January 20, of the next year.
